Tales from the Towpath film

🕒 4pm

Tales from the Towpath is the result of a collaboration of artists, writers, community workers, historians and fisher folk from Clonmel to Kilsheelan and on to Carrick On Suir. It captures some of the history, stories and perhaps even secrets of the Suir and is a powerful reminder of the magic of the Suir Blueway. The film has been created by Rachel Ray and Jack Allen, 4th year students of the Media & Design degree at Limerick Institute of Technology in Clonmel, in collaboration with The Tudor Artisan Hub.

Talk on Passive Architecture

🕒 7-8pm

Spend Culture Night at the museum discovering more about passive architecture, and in particular Quirke's Chemist in Clonmel, in this talk by architect Paul McNally.

This talk is in association with Tipperary County Museum's exhibition 'S.T.A.G. 50' South Tipperary Art Group celebrating its past and present artistic members spanning 50 years.

Debride

🕒 4-7pm

Debride is an exhibition of new artwork by local artist, Brigid Teehan, that examine tensions and fragilities surrounding private/public bodies. The show's title "Debride" is a verb meaning "to remove damaged tissue from a wound." It has its origins in 1839, from French débridement, literally "an unbridling," from débrider "to unbridle," meaning the removal of the headpiece of a horse's harness used to govern and restrain the animal.

Also look out for new artwork on display at Beehouse Arts by guest mixed-media artist, Ian Mannion.

 please note that at the time of printing this brochure, the venue for this event was unconfirmed, please check venue details with the South Tipperary Arts Centre who will be producing a map of Culture Night activities in Clonmel.*

Fragments From...

Sculptor, Catherine Greene, spent a month at the Centre Culturel Irlandais in Paris in late 2017. Savouring the quiet time to observe the city and engage in the craft of drawing, Catherine completed a large number of drawings of heads, gathered from antiquities and graveyards around Paris. A selection of these drawings will form the core of her exhibition Fragments from... which will also include a number of sculptural heads.

Boland's Clonmel

🕒 6pm, 7pm and 8pm

Poet and writer CJ Boland is best remembered for his comic poems including 'The Two Travellers' and 'Retrospect' (immortalised on the Gashouse Bridge), and 2018 marks the centenary of his death. To mark this occasion, in collaboration with his granddaughter, Jane Clare, South Tipperary Arts Centre will produce a theatrical adaptation of Boland's hilarious short story 'The Boatmen of Clonmel', which local actors in 19th century costume will perform, accompanied by other poems from his collections to vividly bring to life the characters and locations of 19th century Clonmel, in a variety of locations around the town, including Clonmel Library.

Full details for this event and a map showing all the locations used will be available from South Tipperary Arts Centre closer to the event. Please consult www.southtippartscentre.ie for more details.

Intruder/ a heart amongst the rubble

🕒 3-6pm

You are invited to discover Shay Hurley's extensive photographic archive on hidden aspects of Suir Island and reflect with artist, Theresia Guschlbauer, and filmmaker, Eimear King, on the conflicted terrain of human intrusion in the natural world and the meaning of heritage.

INSTALLATION ON THE TESCO ROUNDABOUT

Community Drawings Project

Two Clonmel artists, Maurice Caplice and Diarmuid Vaughan, have collaborated with the Clonmel public to create a structure of drawings that will be installed on the Tesco roundabout for Culture Night 2018.

The installation will be a vibrant splash of colour and drawing, representative of community creativity and collaboration, be sure to look out for it.

Maurice Caplice works in painting, sculpture and sound and his practice involves working with communities. He has exhibited throughout Ireland and Internationally.

Diarmuid Vaughan: is an artist, actor, maker, set designer and Chairman of St Mary's Choral Society in Clonmel. Diarmuid's artistic practice is about engaging the public and he has starred in shows throughout Ireland and been the recipient of National Drama awards.
